Undersea Odyssey Tours

The experiences on UnderSea Odyssey Tours are all exclusive, family oriented, romantic, relaxing and fun. They are tailored to reflect who we are, and what this beautiful Island means. Come share them with us!

4 HR SNORKEL ODYSSEY

Families or couples can enjoy a trip to Bird Island, go for a short hike, then snorkeling. After spending time with the marine, hors d'oeuvres are served on board. Then, across to the west coast, to enjoy Antigua's coastal views and historic landmarks. Plus swim in the beautiful waters, at a secluded beach and stroll along the sands. Fruits are offered as we make our way back.

2.5 HR SUNSET ODYSSEY

This Experience is for the Romantic at heart. Couples can take a trip along the west coast, where you can enjoy the coastal views. Up close views can be seen of our historical landmarks. Then, you will be taken to a secluded beach, where you can de-board, swim and a stroll along the beach. Perhaps, you may prefer staying onboard and enjoy hors d'oeuvres. As the sunsets, you can toast to your love, and the splendor of our Island. Bubbly is served on all of our Experiences, and the Bar is OPEN!

Stingray City Antigua

Stingray City Antigua Snorkel Adventure will leave you with memories that will last a time. Southern Rays are friendly and gentle creatures and are considered in the Caribbean. Enjoy the unique experience of touching and feeding a Stingray, together with snorkelling amongst magnificent coral reefs and colourful tropical fish.

The Southern Ray is known as the puppy dog of the sea, always looking for attention and a snack. The rays' sting is a boney spine in the tail that cannot be used in an offensive manner. It is strictly used as a defensive tool to protect itself from predators while sleeping or relaxing.

The friendly and competent guides will brief you on how to handle the rays and at no time will you be at any risk. In fact, quite the opposite; in the wink of an eye, you will find yourself spellbound by their gracefulness and beauty, and you will find yourself among the thousands of people who return home wanting to come back.

South Coast Horizon

Enjoy the peaceful beauty of South Coast Horizon, located on the south coast of Antigua. It is locked in between the mountain range of Mount Obama (formerly Bogy Peak), in the north, and the Caribbean Sea in the south, with Guadeloupe, Dominica, Montserrat and Redonda on the horizon. You start your morning looking at the rays of the sun over the hilltops. During the day you may laze on the beach, snorkel at Cades Reef, or find a variety of other activities in the area to add to your vacation fun. You can choose to do a tour of our palm garden -8 species-, our walk-through bird cage, and pyramid park. Or take our eco-tour of the lagoon ending in a hike on Goats Head hill.

ON THE ECO-TOUR

The activities at South Coast Horizon are carefully planned to preserve, protect and enhance the marine environment and surrounding area. Cades Reef, Antigua's biggest coral reef, lies a short quarter of a mile south of our beach, and our snorkelling adventure takes you there. We also run our own fantasy eco tour through the mangroves of the lagoon for guests as well as visitors to South Coast Horizon. The view of the Caribbean Sea is punctuated only by the lush tranquillity of the lagoon and Goat Head Hill.

Kite SURF ANTIGUA

Kitesurf Antigua is the island's number one choice for kite surfing. With over 10 years of experience they have the best teaching location and their friendly instructors are always ready to provide you with a safe and fun learning experience. Located on the beautiful Jabberwock Beach, the warm tradewinds blow here from the months of December through August and they are open as long as the breeze is up.

The beach is over a quarter mile long with side-on wind directions that offer a safe haven for learners and some 'bump and jump' conditions further upwind for the more experienced riders. With lots of beach space for practicing the important skills of rigging, launching and landing your kites, Jabberwock Beach is the safest and most comfortable beach on the island to learn kiting. Kitesurf Antigua has two packages that they offer to beginners. The Beginner Special is a 4hr crash course that covers all the basics like kite theory, rigging, kite control, launching and landing, safety, and body dragging.

The second package is the 10 hour Clinic (done over 3 days) and takes you through everything in the Beginner Special before moving onto water starting and riding.

Reef Riders

Situated in the picturesque Jolly Harbour Marina, just a short 20-minute taxi ride from St. John's Port, WCT Antigua Reef Riders presents you with a unique opportunity to captain your own 11-foot, two-seater inflatable Reef Rider boat on our award-winning snorkeling tour. They are a small company that specializes in offering small, intimate tours, usually of no more than 10 guests, although they can accommodate larger group sizes upon request.

Reed Riders offers multiple tour times throughout the day to keep their tour sizes small so that they do not take too many people to the reef at the same time. They believe this greatly enhances the tour experience and makes them different from many of the other tours in the region.

National Sailing Academy

The National Sailing Academy was founded by Elizabeth Jordan in 2010 and, for the first four years, operated from the Antigua Yacht Club. By February 2014, we moved, and become operational, at our new Headquarters in Dockyard Drive, English Harbour. It was necessary to have our own premises so that we could aim at becoming more financially sustainable, over a period of time – rather than remain totally reliant on charitable donations. The Academy is funded by donations from individuals, groups and businesses, both in Antigua and overseas as well as creating revenue from our various activities both on & off the water.

The Academy has 3 racing Keelboats – Cork 1720’s – and these are available for hire as well and for racing charters. In Antigua Sailing Week 2019 one of our 1720’s gained 1st place for the week overall with a team of Academy youth sailors.

In addition to the watersport activities, we hold various social events, such as our very successful seated concerts, and welcome enquiries for the hire of the venue for parties, weddings etc. Our one acre of gardens and ample parking make this the ideal site for a range of events.

SUGAR Island TOURS

Sugar Island Tours' private boat excursions are unique because they have no set itineraries, but will design an individual one for your day, custom tailored to your needs. This is your vacation so you should do what you want to do! Their tours are four hours, along the West Coast of Antigua, out of Jolly Harbour, but can be extended or in a different location depending on how you want to customize your day.

Favorite activities include snorkeling, fishing, secluded beaches, and sightseeing. The owner's passion was to start their own boat tour, to welcome all visitors as if they are family - so they have tailored their tour for those who want a personal experience, with quality time to truly enjoy Antigua. At the end of the day, you will feel like you've been with friends that you've known all your life. So come and have a safe and enjoyable day, on a sweet boat ride, with Sugar Island Tours.

Pigs in Paradise

Pigs in Paradise is an exclusive pig beach experience. You can paddle, pet, feed, and cuddle their friendly piglets on a secluded picturesque beach. Join them and learn all there is to know about these beautiful creatures.

To schedule a visit with the pigs, guests are advised to schedule an appointment, three weeks in advance of their desired visitation date. The Pig Family accepts visitation between Tuesdays to Fridays at 11 am or 1 pm and on Saturdays at 10 am or 12 pm. Pigs in Paradise intends to change individuals' perspectives of farm animals and to educate about pigs with interactive and fun activities. The Pig's Paradise Team prides themselves on ensuring guests' safety through Demonstrative Health and Safety Protocols. Do remember, pigs are more than just food, pigs are also friends!

The Pig Family is hand raised and fed with baby bottles with cow's milk. During your visitation at Pigs in Paradise, guests are encouraged to interact with the pigs by swimming and feeding them with baby bottles, holding the pigs, learning their names, and doing pig tricks. At the end of the tour, refreshments are distributed, and are engaged in an interactive activity, Piggy Quiz! Visit, love it, live it!

Donkey Sanctuary

The Antigua & Barbuda Humane Society, located on the eastern side of the island near Bethesda, offers a permanent home for donkeys at risk.

The Donkey Sanctuary welcomes visitors and is favourite stop for children and adults alike. It offers families a wonderful alternative to another day on the beach. Hotel guests often make return visits during their stay just to spend some more time with our donkeys. In addition to the foals, a favourite of visitors to the Donkey Sanctuary is Stevie, an adult donkey who was struck by a vehicle and is now totally blind. Because of the special care and attention that is given to Stevie he is able to manage quite well and loves the extra attention he receives from everyone.

To help raise funds for the care of the donkeys, the Humane Society sells T-Shirts at the sanctuary and offers an 'Adopt an Antiguan Donkey' programme. Visitors are welcome to help brush the donkeys, and take as many photos as they like.

Antilles Stillhouse

Antilles Stillhouse is a small family run craft distillery overlooking English Harbour, Antigua. They make Botanical Spirits which highlight Antiguan and Caribbean flavours. Spirits whose defining flavours come from the aromatic plant flavors that they grow, forage or source. Their portfolio currently includes their signature Big Wood Gin, Pink Gin, Fever grass Spirit, and Blue Pastis. While the business is primarily a distillery, they have a diverse skill set and make a range of other cottage products including Fermented Pepper Sauces, traditionally fermented Cane Sugar Vinegar, a range of jams and preserves, and natural Sea Salt Soap and Shampoo bars.

They now welcome small groups for private tastings, tours, and events. Set in their distillery garden, where they grow many of their ingredients, they provide the only agritourism attraction in Antigua. Visitors enjoy an immersive experience where they can see products being made, meet the team, taste samples, and purchase products. As a family-owned and run business, they work together from start to finish. From foraging botanicals, bottling hot sauce and handcrafting soap, and everything in between, each item they produce represents a labour of love and tells a story that they hope people will enjoy.

nicole's Table

"West Indians work hard, play hard, and love their food. Our goal is not just to teach you about our food, but to let you experience our culture."
- Nicole

SMALL CLASSES

Our Caribbean cooking classes are designed so you can learn hands-on, or sit, watch, talk, and eat. We typically don't have more than 10 people at a time... and prefer 4-8. This makes our classes more like close friends sitting for a meal, than a formal learning experience. The duration is 3-4 hours, depending on the class. Visitors receive a full menu with recipes, Nicole's Old Fashioned Rum Punch, soft beverages, and the food they prepare and cook. The view of the Caribbean Sea is included at no extra cost.

FRESH FOODS

Nicole likes to use fresh and in-season fruits, vegetables, and herbs. They taste better and are much healthier, but it sometimes means that the ingredients will vary from class to class... depending on the season and what the market and our gardens have to offer. So be prepared for variations in the menu and take it in stride the Caribbean way... with a smile.

The cost of our classes is US$110/person to US$125/person (except custom classes which can vary depending upon the menu or time of year.

Sightseeing

ANTIGUA

NATIONAL PARKS

Devil's Bridge

Devil's Bridge, located outside the village of Willikies, offers a stunning glimpse into Antigua's natural formation. Composed of limestone rock, the rugged terrain of Devil's Bridge is the result of millions of years of ancient reef formation. For hundreds of thousands of years, the Atlantic's waves have crashed into the east coast of Antigua creating a natural arch, or bridge. Numerous geysers and blowholes surround the arch as waves continually break against the coastal rocks.

In addition to being a natural phenomenon, Devil's Bridge also holds cultural importance in Antigua history. A prehistoric, Amerindian site is located within its vicinity and suggests that prehistoric peoples may have used the area for fishing and settlement. Though popular belief suggests slaves leapt to their death off of the natural arch during the period of slavery in Antigua, these stories have no historical evidence to support them. Still, Devil's Bridge gets its name from these myths as the stories contend the devil claimed those who leapt off the bridge.

Devil's Bridge is a natural rock arch in eastern Antigua. It is located on the Atlantic coast near Indian Town Point to the east of Willikies. The area around the arch features several natural blowholes and is a popular local swimming spot, as an offshore reef acts as a natural breakwater.

Green Castle Hill

Green Castle Hill peaks at 565 feet above sea level, making it one of the tallest hills on the island. Located near the village of Jennings, approximately 3 miles south of St. John's, Green Castle Hill is accessible only by hiking and it is recommended only experienced hikers trek up the hillsides.

Green Castle Hill is the remnant of an isolated volcano and, at the beginning of the Oligocene geologic period, the volcano would have been exposed to the ocean and waves would have affected the formation of rocks. As the volcanic substance cooled, the rocks would have formed into columnlike shapes within the volcano. Thousands of years of erosion have exposed these volcanic rock faces resulting in a variety of boulders of different shapes and sizes.

Thus, it is widely believed that the rocks atop Green Castle Hill are natural rock formations. However, evidence of Amerindian activity at Green Castle Hill has been discovered in archaeological research.

Therefore, prehistoric peoples may have viewed the hilltop as ritually important and used the natural rock formations in their own cultural practices.

FORT BARRINGTON

Fort Barrington, named for the Admiral who fortified the fort in 1779, safeguarded St. John's Harbour during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Not only did the fort guard St. John's Harbour, but it also served as an important signal station to alert forces throughout the island of impending attacks. Fort Barrington is the only fort that saw military action in Antigua.

Fort Barrington served as a military defence post beginning in the seventeenth century. In 1652 Prince Rupert, the first member of the Royal Family to visit the West Indies captured the fort in an attempt to claim Antigua for the Royalists.

In 1666, the French invaded Deep Bay and captured Fort Barrington so quickly the English soldiers fled the fort with the Royal flag still flying. In 1790, the fort was reinforced to forestall additional attacks by French forces.

Today the remains of Fort Barrington include a powder magazine and a gun platform that held eight guns. The fort provides magnificent views of St. John's Harbour and Deep Bay.

Nelson's DOCKYARD MUSEUM

Right in the middle of the dockyard, you will find the delightful Dockyard Museum. Housed in the Naval Officer's House, the Museum was officially opened in 1997.

It showcases the history of the only continuously-working Georgian Dockyard in the world. It also serves as the centre of archaeological, environmental, and historical research in Antigua.

There are also educational programmes hosted by the museum to promote higher learning standards and increased scientific understanding.

LIBRARY AND GIFT SHOP

A research library is available for anyone to come and explore. There are books on the navy, Horatio Nelson and even some old accounts of Antigua kept there. The Museum Restoration Gift Shop is also well-stocked with the most interesting and attractive items.

RESEARCH

There is an archaeological laboratory available to fellow researchers. Please book an appointment if you wish to visit the lab.

Shirley Heights Lookout and Blockhouse

This high ground was fortified in the late eighteenth century and the remains of old gun emplacements and military structures can be seen around the area. The heights were named after General Shirley who was the Governor of the Caribbean Leeward Islands at the time of construction of the fortifications.

The Heights military complex stands guard at the most southerly point of Antigua, some 490 feet above sea level with a battery of guns protecting the narrow entrance to Nelsons Dockyard in English Harbour. Together with the guns at Fort Berkeley on the other side of the harbour, the dockyard remained secure from attack.

Just below Shirley Heights lies the area of Blockhouse Hill where there is a large gunpowder store (well away from any other buildings).

Blockhouse Hill affords fantastic views over the south coast of Antigua as far as Hudson Point to the south east and on a clear day, fine distant views of the Soufriere Hills Volcano on nearby Montserrat Island, which erupted in the mid nineties causing widespread damage to the island.

FORT GEORGE

Fort George, known as Falmouth's Protector, is another remarkable sight that makes up Antigua's varied landscape. This 699-foot table hill was first used back in the 1680's when it was chosen as the perfect place to protect Falmouth from potential attacks from the French. Taking no less than 16 years to build, the Fort is named after the patron saint of England. It is built on Monk's Hill, which in turn was named after the original land owner Nathaniel Monk.

Fort George is easily accessible through the villages of Liberta or Table Hill Gordon, or even through the back of Falmouth. From the top, it is quite an incredible view and one that is not to be missed. You can scan the entire National Park area from the peak

The park provides an excellent habitat for some natural wonders. Singing birds, plants, fruit and flowers of many species can be found around the park and provide an excellent photo opportunity as long as the wild is not disturbed.

The National Park Authority has gained a mandate from the Antiguan government that no development can go forth in the area without their consent, in order to protect the natural beauty of the park.

FORT CHARLOTTE The Pillars of Hercules

Fort Charlotte is situated on the headland that the pillars support as part of what is known as the Charlotte Peninsula. Gorgeous beaches surround the headland; Galleon Beach being one, with its golden sand, lapping waves, beach bar and plenty of space for beach barbecues, this is the perfect mix with a historical and cultural visit to Fort Charlotte. The Charlotte Reef, home of Carpenter Rock with its tantalisingly turquoise ocean and fabulous formations of rocks and rock pools.

The Pillars of Hercules are a much recommended spot for snorkelling and scuba diving. Standing at 50 metres (165 feet), this is a great spot for both novices and experts. For novices it isn't too deep (45 metres / 145 feet) and the visibility is clear (30 metres / 100 feet). For experts there is plenty of rare marine to spot. Alongside the beautiful coral and sponge growth you will find loads of coral encrusted boulders that create fantastic swim passages.

It is known to contain rare fish such as the Tritons Horn, Sergeant Majors, Blue Tang and Snappers. There is never anything but praise for the Pillars of Hercules as a diving site and if you are into diving, it is strongly recommended you give Fort Charlotte a go to gain a real taste of what the island has to offer.

FORT BERKELEY

Known as English Harbour's Protector, Fort Berkeley is an incredible structure, defended by no less than 25 large cannons to protect English Harbour and the lands of Antigua. Designed in 1704, this Fort was designed to be a crucial part of the defence mechanism, supported by many smaller forts nearby.

The area was so well defended, these forts were never actually attacked. Before arriving at the battlements you may spot a stone quarry on the right which is where the fort's stone came from to build the defence mechanism for the harbour. Other features to be seen at Fort Berkeley are the huge chain and timber boom that was used to seal the entrance to the harbour to stop intruders from entering. For those into history and culture, this will be a site of high interest.

There is an excellent chance for some snaps along the trail to Fort Berkeley. The trail starts by the dinghy dock, behind the Copper and Lumber Store hotel in Nelson's Dockyard. Along the way there are some real picture postcard opportunities. From the trail and Fort you can see many of Antigua's most iconic and beautiful sights.

The Charlotte Peninsula and the Pillars of Hercules can easily be photographed are just two of these among a whole list of others that include Clarence House, Antigua Slipway, Freeman's Bay, Dow's Hill, Galleon Beach and of course Shirley Heights.

Betty's Hope

Betty's Hope in Antigua and Barbuda was a sugar plantation which provided livelihood for many generations of Antiguans from the time it was established in 1650 during the British Colonial rule. It flourished as a successful agricultural industrial enterprise, the first large-scale sugar plantation to operate in Antigua, starting with the Codrington family's ownership in 1674, which lasted till 1944. Sir Christopher Codrington, Governor of the Leeward Islands in 1674, named the estate 'Betty's Hope,' after his daughter.

Betty's Hope is not operational now as a plantation. However, the structures at the time of restoration works initiated by the Government of Antigua in 1990, under the OEC/ESDU Eco-Tourism Enhancement project, consisted of the twin wind mills, the Cistern Complex in serviceable condition, the Great House (Buff or Estate House) in ruins, the Boiling House where 16 copper hoppers were used to boil cane juice to produce crystalline sugar and the Still House (distillery) used for manufacturing rum (also seen in ruins without roof but with elegant arches). Since 1995, it has been developed as an open air museum with a visitor centre under the jurisdiction of the Museum of Antigua and Barbuda.

DOW'S HILL INTERPRETATION CENTRE

The Interpretation Centre at Dow's Hill offers a well-crafted and informational production on the history, culture and heritage of Antigua and Barbuda. The 15-minute long presentation, gives a look back into the six ages of time that have shaped what the twin-island nation is today. It offers a fascinating insight into the Antiguan way of and this relaxed, yet informative start to a visit on the island is highly recommended. You can also chill out in the café with the cool southern breezes and shop in the gift shop to remember your visit for years to come.

WEDDINGS

With the cool breeze, distant music from Shirley Heights and unforgettable setting, this is a very popular and superb venue for weddings. Overlooking the dockyard, with the sun setting to the west over the glistening Caribbean Sea, what better way to tie the knot and begin the next path of than on the steps of Dow's Hill overlooking Antigua's gorgeous national park.

SIGHTSEEING / PHOTOGRAPHY

The Belvedere offers a panoramic view of the National Park, giving you the chance to take some scenic photos of the superb surroundings. There is a 360 degree view of Nelson's Dockyard which acts as an excellent photography opportunity.

Nelson's Dockyard

A visit to the island would be incomplete without seeing Nelson's Dockyard, the restored Georgian Naval Dockyard that forms part of Antigua and Barbuda's UNESCO World Heritage Site,

The yard was originally named, after famous English Admiral Horatio Nelson, the dockyard was originally called "His Majesty's Antigua Naval Yard", it only became known as Nelson's Dockyard after a major restoration project. This was completed. The National Parks Authority continues to use traditional means and methods in the stabilizing and historical preservation of the site.

Nelson's Dockyard in English Harbour is today one of the most prominent visitor attractions for Antigua and Barbuda. It incorporates a splendid yacht marina, home of the prestigious Antigua Sailing Week, and is the only remaining working Georgian Dockyard in the world. Many of the interesting historical buildings, housing restaurants, a bakery, gift shops and offices are open to the public.

There is a 15-minute tour of the Dockyard offered that gives an insightful and entertaining account of the Dockyard's history.

Life in BARBUDA

f t i g VISITANTIGUABARBUDA.COM

BARBUDA

Barbuda is one of the best beach destinations in the Caribbean, if not the world; it has unspoiled beaches on all sides of the island. Usually you will be alone on the beach, except for the hotel beaches but these are open to all visitors as long as no guests keep to the waterline.

Most of the beaches have no facilities at all so it's important to remember to take plenty of water (freeze a bottle overnight) and find a place to keep out of the sun for some of the time. In some places when you have seen one beach you have seen them all, but in Barbuda each one is different, better than the last, and interesting enough to keep even the most cynical holidaymaker happy for hours.

The beaches have great names too - Palm Beach, Low Bay, Pelican Bay, Princess Diana Beach, Spanish Point, River Beach, Gravenor Bay, Two Foot Bay, Cedar Tree Point, Coral Group Bay.

Frigate Bird Sanctuary

NATIONAL PARK, BARBUDA

Barbuda's Frigate Bird Sanctuary is located in the island's north-western lagoon and is accessible only by boat. The sanctuary contains over 170 species of birds and is home to over 5,000 frigate birds. Fregata magnificens, the most aerial of water-birds, possesses the largest wingspan (four to five feet) in proportion to its body size of any bird in the world.

It is also known as the man o' war bird, and the comparison to warships is a particularly apt one—with its superior size and flight capabilities, the frigate bird harasses less agile flyers like pelicans, egrets, and cormorants until they drop their catch. The male frigate is marked by its red throat pouch, which it can inflate as part of its courtship behaviour and as a defensive display. Courting takes place in the fall, and chicks hatch late in the year.

Martello Tower

This tower, 32 feet high, and fort of 3 guns was used as a look-out along the south coast and for sighting in-coming or wrecked ships. This information was then signalled onward to the village of Codrington, several miles north.

The fort, once with 3 guns, is situated by a small river which only appears in times of wet weather. This small stream is caused by the drainage of swamps that lie inland behind the beach. The fort guarded the main anchorage on the south-western side of Barbuda. The name 'Martello' is derived from a tower at Cape Mortella in Corsica that the British, had difficulty in taking in 1794. The south coast of England was defended by Martello Towers against Napoleon's intended invasion of England in 1803.

SPANISH POINT

Spanish Point, studded with coral reefs, is the most south-easterly point of Barbuda and is perhaps named after the wreck of a Spanish merchantman by the name of "Santiago de Cullerin." She was lost here in 1695, and indeed, shortly afterwards maps began to appear with the name of Spanish Point. She was carrying 13,000 pesos to pay Spanish garrisons at Maracaibo, on the Spanish Main, but all this and some of her other cargo was salvaged by divers at the time.

In 1988, the dive ship "Riptide" of H & E Marine, began mapping the site and recovered a few artefacts from under a thick coral concretion in heavy surf on the windward side. No coins were found, but large jars and a wooden comb are some of the many artefacts recovered. The Point's history had begun much earlier, for maritime Amerindians from South America had settled in the vicinity about 500 years after the birth of Christ.

Then later, European colonists built a small lookout tower, probably as a precaution against marauding Amerindians from Dominica who at the time were jealous of the European incursion.

Caves

As an island composed of limestone, Barbuda has many caves to explore....

DARBY'S CAVE

Three and half miles north-east of Codrington Village is Darby's Cave, a spectacular vertical sink hole in the middle of the bush. It is well worth a visit to see the huge deep hole suddenly appear in front of you and wonder how it got there - the tops of tall palm trees are suddenly at eye level!

Darby Sink Hole is over 100 metres in diameter and around 70 feet deep. One side of the hole has been greatly undercut and stalagmites up to 8 feet high have formed under the overhang. The vegetation resembles a mini rainforest with palms, ferns, and lianas. It is well worth a visit but a local guide is essential for this trip.

DARK CAVE

Dark Cave is two miles to the south of Darby Cave. The cave has a narrow entrance leading to a vast cavern containing pools of water, which were probably a water source for Amerindian inhabitants as artefacts have been found nearby.

Dark Cave is the habitat for several rare species of crustaceans, including blind shrimp. The caves at Two Foot Bay range from small crawl-in holes to huge cavernous areas complete with stalactites and stalagmites and many fossils. Barbudans have camped in the caves for centuries and have given them names, such as 'The Fridge', which as its name suggests is cool and breezy. In 'Indian Cave' at Two Foot Bay it is possible to see drawings (Petroglyphs) left by the original inhabitants of Barbuda, the Arawak or the Siboney.
